1851 LONDON MEDAL SET

314. Case of five medals. Five award medals inscribed to George Ayton Craster of the Bengal Engineers, all in a single case. The medals:

The Council Medal, 1851; 3½-inch (89mm) bronze. By William Wyon. Cojoined busts Albert & Victoria facing left above two dolphins; engraver's name, date, and Royal Mint below. Rev three human figures, flags & symbols in background; by Hippolyte Bonnardel, designer and Joseph Francois Domard, sculptor.

The Prize Medal, 1851; 3-inch (76.5mm) bronze. Same obv as above, except for size. Rev six female figures (representing all races), symbols in background; by Leonard C. Wyon.

The Jurors Medal, 1851; 2½-inch (63.8mm) bronze. Same obv as above except for size. Rev Angel, two females & Lion; by George G. Adams.

The Service Medal, 1851; 1⅞-inch (47.9mm) bronze. Obv portrait Prince Albert alone as president of the Royal Commission. By William Wyon. Rev For Services within wreath.

The Exhibitors Medal, 1851; 1¾-inch (44.4mm) bronze. Same obv portrait as the Service Medal, by William Wyon. Rev globe & eagle.

Inscriptions: all five medals are engraved on the edge with the name of the recipient "Ensign Craster, H.E.I.C.E." and below the name of the medal or "Presentation."

The case: Gold tooled red leather with brass hinges & clasps. On front cover embossed in gold: "Exhibition. MDCCC.LI / Medals" with initials "A" and "V" for Albert and Victoria supporting a crown & surrounded by an inverted traingle of flowers & leaves. Back of case is the same design in blind embossing. The spine reads, in gold: "Exhibition M.D.CCC.LI / Medals."

Inside the case there is gold scrollwork border with a blue satin pad on the left. Printed in gold on the satin is the following inscription: "Presented by Her Majesty's Commissioners for the Exhibition of M.D.CCC.L.I. to Geo. Anyton Craster, Lieutenant Bengal Engineers." in six lines. Below is a symbol printed in gold of a dove and the "AV" & crown symbol on the cover.

The medals are custom fitted into a velvet pad with their respective name printed in gold over each medal.

The hinges & clasps are magnificent craftsmanship. They are brass with pierced openwork of flower & dolphin design, enhanced with line engraving. All work surprisingly well despite their age. The case has only one stain and very few scuff marks.

Condition: The succession of owners since Ensign Craster have taken better care of the case than the medals themselves. They have been cleaned and have retoned, resulting in a slightly uneven patina. Several are edge nicked.

Complete set rare in original case; a fine addition to any exposition collection.

Estimate $350.00-400.00

Art Medals Sell Well At Auction During 3-Day Sculpture Show

With an unusual tie-in for a numismatic sale, the Johnson & Jensen May 20 auction of 611 lots of medallic art was held during a three-day sculpture show to the delight of art patrons and collectors.

The auction of medals, plaques and plaquettes realized $21,915 as collectors who came to attend one function, visited the other. A Long Island collector who came to attend the art medal auction purchased a bronze figure of Pegasus. A family who came to attend the sculpture show ended up bidding on—and acquiring —the Lincoln Plaque by Victor D. Brenner & cast by Gorham (lot 552).

A Washington DC collector who attended both functions on Sunday later commented on the prices at the auction in contrast to some of the prices of sculpture among the sixty exhibitors of the International Sculpture Fair:

"I have never attended an auction before ... I had figured out what my mail bids would be and find that I saved $71 by being at the auction ... When I saw the prices on the sculpture at the show I about dispared of ever acquiring more for my home."

Collectors of good art—paintings, sculpture or whatever—have come to realize that medals are indeed miniature works of art, collectible in their own right. Collectors of paintings quickly learn that their wall space often limits the number they may own. Once attracted to fine art medals, however, they recognize medals may be displayed with ease or housed nicely in a small space.

SMALL sculptures and bas-reliefs form a part of the Johnson & Jensen exhibit at International Sculpture Fair. Many of the reliefs were issued as medals, created by artists who did both "in-the-round" and flat relief.

Art also influenced many a buyer, as a member of Florida's Wolfson family acquired the charming plaquette of the Royal Society of Aquarellists (lot 42). A beautiful piece, in shades of gray and brown patina, it honored turn of the century water colorists.

"I like it for the early art deco motif," said the buyer prior to the sale.

Overall the auction sale was a source for many people who were seeking special interest art, items for specialized collections, or an unusual artistic investment.

Medallic topics abounded in the sale. In all, art medals from over 30 countries were present, and so many topical medals in such wide price ranges that an article on the sale in The New York Times was headlined: "A Medal Sale With Something For Everyone"!

Here were some of the most notable items attesting to that diversity:

- The Gold Medical Medal, Mount Sinai Hospital Trusteeship Medal of 1927 (lot 570) $1,000.
- The Brenner Lincoln Medallion mounted on bronze & marble plaque by Gorham (lot 552) $975.
- The World's Fair Prosperity Coin from Chicago, 1933, a lot of seven items (lot 371) $500.
- Plaster coinage models for the 1932 Washington Quarter with cast wall plaque (lot 548) $340.
- The set of five cased medals from the 1851 London Exposition (lot 314) $340.
- Catherine the Great Second Portion of Poland (lot 283) $265.
- Fidel Castro Medal (90) $235.

Scenes From May 20th Auction And Sculpture Show

SCULPTORS Karen Worth and Carter Jones (center) discuss a set of medals with Hugo Greco, an authority on patina finishes during the International Sculpture Fair in New York City.

IN A CORNER of the Johnson & Jensen sculpture exhibit an art buyer kneels to improve his perspective as he views a bronze dancer, "Anmut," by artist-physician Richard Kislov.

INSPECTING medals in a museum showcase is sculptor Carter Jones. As artist medallist, Jones created the famed medal commemorating the telephone centennial.

EARLY morning chores. Partner Dick Johnson spreads out medals for display as dealers set up in background for the monthly Manhattan coin & stamp bourse.

SELECTED lots were displayed under glass for prospective bidders to view, or to request for closer, hands-on examination. Collector indicates his choice.

PARTNER Chris E. Jensen mans the "book" containing bids mailed by collectors as auctioneer Herb Melnick calls each lot. Competitive bidding between floor & mail bidders result.

AUCTIONEER Melnick holds overflow audience's rapt attention as he progresses through 610 lots of medallic items in just under three hours. The sale realized almost $22,000.
